

From the Philadelphia Business Journal:

<https://www.bizjournals.com/philadelphia/news/2017/07/31/hogan-lovelles-bny-mellon-center-1735-market.html>

Cool Offices: First look at law firm's new Center City home

Jul 31, 2017, 7:30am EDT

As Hogan Lovells continues to expand in the Philadelphia market, the multinational law firm is relocating into a larger space – moving to the BNY Mellon Center at 1735 Market St..

Hogan Lovells relocated to the 22nd and 23rd floors of the Center City tower, which is also home to Ballard Spahr, CDI and JPMorgan Chase, among other tenants.

Associates and attorneys can find a unique feature within individual offices, where desks automatically rise and lower to accommodate either a sitting or standing position.

“We are excited to begin serving our clients in this beautiful and innovative place,” said Virginia A. Gibson, Managing Partner of the Philadelphia office.

“It is spacious and flexible for the variety of meetings and events our growing team holds. There is room for new personnel and for the many visitors from our global offices whose clients, cases, and deals are in Philadelphia. And we have terrific amenities where we can kick back and take a break when time allows.”

COURTESY OF HOGAN LOVELLS

Address: 1735 Market St

Employees: 41

Building name: BNY Mellon Center

Office Opened: July 24

Size: 34,700 square feet

Floors: 1.5, over 22nd and 23rd floors

Chief Architect: Gensler

Chief Designer: Jay Koback, with lighting design by John Pomp, of Pomp Lighting Studios

General Contractor: C. Erickson and Sons, Inc.

Management company: CBRE

Want to show off your office? We recently asked a variety of local companies to submit what they believed were "cool" office spaces. Send the Philadelphia Business Journal high-resolution photographs and information about your space at clefton@bizjournals.com.